Chicago, Oct. 19.—An attempt will be made to create stock raising areas in the Eastern mountain region from Maine to Gieorgia, in the cotton belt and on the sugar plantations of the South, it was declared to-day in the report of the federal committee, appointed a year ago, to the American Meat Packers' Association.

While it is, of course, not the duty of the Federal Reserve Board to administer matters of this character, the board is nevertheless willing to volunteer for this service, recognizing the great importance to the country of doing everything possible to help the cotton situation. There is a unanimity of opinion among the members of the Federal Reserve Board that a fund of this character, properly administered, will be of great benefit to the South."

James S. Alexander, of the National Bank of Commerce and other bankers. The plan was discussed there and suggestions of alternatives made. One of these, it was reported yesterday, was for members of the Federal Reserve Board to act as a central committee for the pool, with local committees in all the cotton states, the latter to pass upon the applications of banks for credit with the pool or to forward to the pool applications made directly to them and indorsed by them.

Mr. McAdoo. He was introduced by the British Ambassador. Previews to meeting the Secretary of the Treasury he had a short talk with the President. The Secretary of the Treasury, when the conference ended, said:

"Sir George Paish and Mr. Blackett gave assurances of the earnest desire of the British government to lend all the assistance in its power toward the restoration of normal conditions in the foreign exchange market and the opening of the cotton market, which, of course, is intimately related to the foreign exchange situation. No specific plans have yet been considered."

At the suggestion of New York bankers the Federal Reserve Board will probably administer the proposed $150,000,000 fund which Festus J. Wade, of St. Louis, is endeavoring to raise for the relief of the cotton situation.

The Secretary of the Treasury made this announcement to-day, following a conference between bankers in New York. The proposed pool was discussed with leading bankers by Mr. McAdoo and Messys. Maj. Putnam Compares German with Union Troops.

German soldiers have not in the present war shown the initiative displayed by the federals during the Civil War, according to Major George Haven Putnam, toastmaster at the twenty-eighth annual dinner of the Society of the 19th Army Corps, held at the Hotel Astor last night.

"Fifty years ago troops were able to show more individual resourcefulness and initiative," he said.

Other speakers included Loyall C. Farragut and General James D. Bell, commander Grand Army of the Republic, Department of New York. Major J. Langdon Ward showed slides illustrating the trenches about Port Hudson, and Admiral Stewart, commander

Because there is under discussion as way for England to help relieve the cotton situation there has not been any bandonment of the domestic plan. The Wade $150,000,000 cotton pool scheme is now before the Federal Reserve Board for amendment.

One hundred and fifty talesmen had been summoned, but by arrangement prior to the opening of arrangement prior to the opening of court thirty-seven were excused. The others jammed themselves into the other jury box.

Oysterman Is Foreman.

The examinations began at 10:20. Seventeen minutes later Robert F. Ludlam, an oysterman of Oyster Bay, was sworn in as the foreman. The burst of speed so surprised every one, even the attorneys and Justice Kelby, that predictions were freely made that the lury would be complete shortly after noon. Twenty-one minutes later the second juror took his seat. By 12:30, when recess for an hour was ordered, six jurors had been chosen. Once in the morning and once in the afternoon two jurors were chosen within five minutes of each other.

Two features of the examination of talesmen stood out: Celia Coleman will be the principal witness for the prosecution, and that fairly effectually disposes of the theory that the District Attorney has withheld his strength for the trial. Another point is that William J. Burns is certain to testify for the state.

Each talesman was asked by both sides whether the fact that a prospective witness was a negro would impair the value of the evidence to be given by that person.

Only one or two said they would give less consideration to the testimony of a negro witness than to a white witness.

white witness.

Mr. Graham, in his questioning, asked whether the fact that Burns was a detective of nation-wide fame would place higher value on his testimony.

Fully half the time the talesmen, many of them farmers, said they didn't know who Burns was. Others hadn't read of the discovery that Mrs. Carman had installed a dictograph between her room and her husband's office. One man, fifty-six, said he had never read a daily newspaper until the present war began.

mever read a daily newspaper until the present war began.

Mr. Graham asked each talesman if he had heard of the Carman dictograph, and then, after telling those who hadn't all about it, asked whether the fact that Mrs. Carman had installed such an instrument would cause prejudice against the defendant. Invariably the talesman replied that it would not influence him against Mrs.

Dictograph Brings Laugh.

One reply to this latter question, with the added remark: "Do you consider it sneaky?" caused a long general laugh. James H. Aston, of Port Washington, manager for G. P. "Well, I wouldn't be prejudiced to any degree, but I shouldn't like my wife to install a dictograph in my home."

Mrs. Carman twisted around in her seat, almost overcome by surprise and mirth. Toward the close of the session Mr. Graham harped on a feature that had been only an incident in his questioning of talesmen earlier. In asking whether the talesmen knew any of the persons associated with the case he included Bailey. But after a time he enlarged on this by adding:

"When I say Mr. Bailey I mean the man sitting there at the District Attorney's table, who is here waiting ap-
